

FURTHER INFORMATION REGARDING LOBBYING (Section 319 of Public Law 101-121, 31 U.S.C. Section 1352)

WHAT IS LOBBYING?

Lobbying is defined as influencing or attempting to influence any officer or employee of any Federal agency, Members of Congress, officers or employees of Congress, or employees of any Member of Congress in connection with any covered Federal action by communicating with or by appearing before such person. For the purpose of this law, members of the National Council on the Arts as well as members of the Endowment's advisory panels are also considered to be within the scope of the lobbying prohibition.

WHAT ACTIVITIES ARE NOT CONSIDERED LOBBYING?

Professional and Technical Services: The prohibition on the use of appropriated funds does not apply to payment by applicants/grantees to any individual for professional or technical services rendered directly in the preparation, submission, or negotiation of any grant or for meeting requirements imposed by or pursuant to law as a condition for receiving a grant. For example, an applicant may hire an individual to prepare a grant application. That individual may, in turn, contact the Endowment for clarification of various guidelines and regulations.

Agency and Legislative Liaisons: The prohibition on the use of appropriated funds does not apply in the case of payment made to an officer or employee of an applicant/grantee if the payment is for agency and legislative liaison activities not directly related to a covered Federal action.

DOES ALL LOBBYING REQUIRE DISCLOSURE?

No. Disclosure is not required if the individual performing that activity is regularly employed by the applicant/grantee. Regularly employed means an officer or employee of the applicant/grantee who is employed by that applicant/grantee for at least 130 working days within one year immediately preceding the date of the submission that initiates agency consideration of the applicant for a grant. An officer or employee who is employed for less than the 130 working days will not be considered as regularly employed until he or she is employed by the applicant/grantee for 130 working days. Disclosure is required for individuals performing lobbying functions who do not meet the definition of regularly employed.
